

BBC Exposé: It Is Only under Capitalism where Security Agency Turns into a Death Squad

News:

The BBC has released an exposé titled: The Blood Parliament. Uncovering the horrific killings allegedly perpetrated by the Kenyan government against its own youth, popularly known as Gen: These young people had taken to the streets to oppose the controversial Finance Bill, which was being pushed under the influence of the IMF, through its representative in Kenya, Selim Cakir. Selim Cakir was appointed to his position in 2023 and operates from the IMF offices located in the Delta Centre Building in Upper Hill.

Comment:

This brutality is unprecedented in Kenya's history. The youth were shot with live bullets in full view of local and international media outlets, including BBC. The exposé not only reveals the cruelty and corruption of the Kenyan government and the capitalist-democratic system in general which claims to protect citizens while actually serving the interests of Western colonial powers but also makes it clear that Western powers, who spread capitalist-democratic ideals, have no compassion or concern for the people of developing nations.

What matters most to them is defending their own interests by any means necessary, even if it leads to suffering, destruction, or death.

BBC's revelation of these killings sparked two major reactions:

First. Celebration: Gen Z youth and some opposition leaders welcomed the exposé and embraced its findings wholeheartedly.

Second. Anger: Particularly among certain politicians and Members of Parliament allied to the government or supportive of it. They expressed outrage and frustration over the exposé, viewing it as an embarrassment to their government.

The truth is, despite similar events having taken place in America like the Capitol Hill incident which took place during on January 6, 2021, where lives were lost, nevertheless, BBC never dared to publish such a detailed and damning exposé.

The only standard weapon of capitalist regimes is brutality and torture against the citizens. Security agents are not entitled to protect the ordinary people but the interests of the few elites who have no any kind of humanity as they believe strongly on saying: The Mighty is Right. Anyone who dares to expose the ills of the ruling class either is a protester, lawyer or journalist then their life is at risk!!

It is only under the Khilafah "Caliphate" Rashidah (Caliphate) based on the method of the Prophethood that will be soon established in one of the strong Muslim countries when the police forces will be fully committed to maintain law and order. Khilafah "Caliphate" Rashidah will have the best security set up that will guarantee and protect the lives and property of all citizens irrespective of color, tribe or status.
