Trump's Statements of Displacing the People of Gaza are Impudent and Arrogant...They Will Be Shattered on the Rock of their Belief and Steadfastness

(Translated)

US President Donald Trump recently stated that he asked Jordanian King Abdullah II to receive the people of Gaza, and added that he would also ask Egypt to host more of them. When asked whether his proposal was temporary or long-term, he replied: "It could be one or the other."

It is not surprising that this statement was welcomed by the resigned Minister of National Security of the Jewish state, Itamar Ben-Gvir, who congratulated him on his initiative to transfer the residents of Gaza to Jordan and Egypt, saying on Twitter: "One of our demands from Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is to promote voluntary emigration. When the president of the world's greatest superpower, Trump, personally brings up this idea, it is worth the 'Israeli' government implementing it — promote emigration now!"

But what is strange is the statement of the Jordanian Foreign Minister Ayman Safadi (and Safad disassociates himself and from his statements) who rejects this proposal on the basis of abhorrent nationalism, as he said, "Jordan is for Jordanians and Palestine is for Palestinians," and that he does not accept a solution to the Palestinian issue at Jordan's expense!

Trump and his followers, as they watch the scenes of the displaced people of Gaza returning from the south of the Strip to its destroyed north, carrying in their hearts and minds an unyielding determination and an inexhaustible resolve to return to their destroyed homes, should realize that the people of Gaza are steadfast on their land, as firm as the mountains, and that Trump's statements or plan to displace them from Gaza will be shattered on the rock of their steadfastness and perseverance on their land and their belief.

The afflicted people of Gaza have proven, after a fifteen-month war of extermination, that they will not give up their land, and will not abandon their determination to liberate all of Palestine from its sea to its river, and to cleanse it of the filth and impurity of the Jews. They are part of a great, ancient Ummah that does not recognize defeat or accept humiliation. If it were not for the domination of the agent rulers over them, who betrayed Allah and their trust, the Jews would not have had a place in our lands, and America or any other colonial kaffir nation would not have had any authority over them.
