The Interests of Jordan and its People are not the Interests of the Regime

(Translated)

When the interests of the ruling regime differ from the interests of its country and people, such that they must move in opposite directions, and in an attempt to achieve these interests, each of them must work to undermine the elements of empowerment for the other party. From here, the goals and interests of the ruling regime and the political plans it adopts and its use of power over its people by relying on its enemies and using state agencies to terrorize it must be understood. It is also necessary to understand the sources of strength of the ruled, their country and their wealth, as part of an ancient Ummah with sound ideological leadership, and the authority to rule, as well as the people of strength and immunity, and how it can be guided to the path to achieving its interests.

There is no need to remind you of what Operation Flood Al-Aqsa achieved as a clear statement of the truth of the ruling regimes in our countries and their subordination to the Al-Kafer (infidel) colonial West and their failure of the people of Gaza, and the nature of the tyrannical international law and its arms, and confirmed to Muslims the intense hostility and hatred of America and Europe towards them, and the brutality of their tool, the Jewish entity. The regime in Jordan sensed the danger to its rule as a result of the war of genocide waged by Jews in Gaza, and its sense of danger was embodied more clearly with the statements of Jewish leaders imposing sovereignty over the West Bank and rejecting the two-state solution, and with the arrival of Trump to rule America and his approval of the demands of the Jewish entity, which constituted a nightmare for the regime and a real threat whose pillars were not completed during Trump's first term in office through the so-called Deal of the Century.

What is being presented in the media, and what is being said by so-called experts and local circles, indicates that Jordan is part of Netanyahu and his government's aspirations, and seizing the opportunity of his ally Trump's return to the White House to implement his expansionist projects, which he believes will enhance the security of his entity's existence, which was weakened after Operation Flood of Al-Aqsa, and which America identifies with not necessarily by expanding eastward, but perhaps by a new interpretation of the Palestinian state to be outside Palestine, to include imposing dealings with the West Bank, building a separation wall, and displacing the people of the West Bank to Jordan voluntarily or forcibly, with Jordanian management of the remaining population, and perhaps by restructuring Jordan politically, in a manner consistent with the American project after Gaza and what Trump is cooking up after assuming power.

These real fears of the regime prompted the king to visit Britain, the home of political obedience to the Hashemite regime, where he met with King Charles, who awarded him the highest royal Victorian medal, contrary to British tradition. He also met with Prime Minister Keir Starmer for the second time in four months, and together they witnessed the results of Trump's victory and were quick to congratulate him as a diplomatic measure, despite the low level of relations between Britain and America, which indicates that Britain and its agents are heading towards bowing and identifying with Trump's stronger policy in his second term, despite the repeated historical talk after World War II about the special relationship between them. It is a security, military, and intelligence relationship, not a political or economic relationship, as it is characterized by competition and international conflicts.

The relationship of the Jordanian regime with the American administrations is a relationship of security, military, and economic dictates and serving their interests and consequently the interests of the Jewish entity, with fluctuations up and down between the Republican administration and the Democratic administration, and political relations whose appearance is submission and subordination and whose interior is anticipation, caution, and confusion as much as possible, just like Britain's political role with the United States, as it has political loyalty to the Hashemite regime, and its legacy since its inception, by a British decision that constituted the furthest point in the history of Jordan, as it separated it from its ancient history to which the people of Jordan belong, which is the Islamic state and its Islamic faith.

Here the importance of realizing and classifying the threats facing Jordan, its people and its enormous capabilities is highlighted. Some of the risks and threats relate to the possibility of destabilizing the regime and undermining its stability, with the possibility of replacing it if necessary, by Western colonial projects, led by America. This necessity relates to the position of the regime in Jordan on the upcoming American project for the region under the Trump administration. Here, there are no signs from the regime that it will challenge this project or any other submissive solution. Perhaps this is what the king expressed in his parliamentary speech when he said: “We are a state with a solid identity, which does not risk its future and preserves its Hashemite legacy.” He is necessarily talking about his interest in remaining as a ruling regime and what he calls the Hashemite legacy, as a cheap price for his engagement with the American project and serving the interests of the Jewish entity, which are far removed from Jordan's interests, principles and affiliation. These are the risks that the regime has thrown itself into and that it is using to confront the country.

Oh People of Jordan: Despite what the political and popular circles whisper in their closed circles, which are gradually getting louder, about the fate of Jordan and its people and the dangers it is exposed to from its enemies, led by America, Europe and the Jewish entity, and the liquidation of the Palestinian cause, despite its economic crises and its debts that are getting worse day by day, which are met by what the regime's mouthpieces and apparatuses, including the media, representatives, dignitaries and beneficiaries, say in praise of the regime for its bad deeds, to add an aura of terror and tyranny to the general atmosphere, the people of Jordan do not find anyone who adopts a practical solution that will take the people out of the circle of the regime's control, terror and tyranny, despite its obvious weakness, and lead them towards radical salvation from the humiliation, arrogance and aggression they have been suffering from by the forces of injustice and aggression throughout the generations.

You, the people of Jordan, will not escape the circle of deceit, conspiracies and plots woven by the infidel colonizer and his lackeys from among your rulers who have become known to you, except by working to return to your state with a firm identity to which you belong, which is certainly the state of the Caliphate on the path of the Prophethood, through which you are glorified and which protects your honor and repels your enemies. So do not be deceived by the slander of your rulers and the lies of their speeches.

﴿لَا تَجِدُ قَوْمًا يُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللَّهِ وَالْيَوْمِ الْآخِرِ يُوَادُّونَ مَنْ حَادَّ اللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُ وَلَوْ كَانُوا آبَاءَهُمْ أَوْ أَبْنَاءَهُمْ أَوْ إِخْوَانَهُمْ أَوْ عَشِيرَتَهُمْ﴾

“You will never find a people who ‘truly’ believe in Allah and the Last Day loyal to those who defy Allah and His Messenger, even if they were their parents, children, siblings, or extended family.” [Al-Mujadila 58:22]
